HERBS AROUND TOWN: LOCAL MEDICINAL PLANTS

with Corinne Martin
MONDAY, OCTOBER 5, 6:30 PM

Get to know some of the local healing herbs and their uses, and learn about the role medicinal plants can have in gently supporting our own health, and in developing a stewardship for our home ground.

Corinne Martin is a clinical herbalist and amateur naturalist, and has been working with medicinal plants for over 40 years. She studied Herbalism at the Institute for Traditional Medicine in Santa Fe, NM, and earned a Master's Degree in Anthropology with a concentration in Ethnobotany from the University of Southern Maine, going on to teach Holistic and Integrative Health courses at the USM School of Nursing for almost 20 years.

Corinne is the author of three herb books and one memoir. Her latest book, Louisiana Healing Garden: Medicinal Plants for a Sustainable Future, was published by LSU Press this spring.
